

IT from the field to the boardroom

The Conductor Tool is the IT solution for your company when it comes to planning, executing, capturing, and following up on work carried out in the field.

The greatest challenge that many companies face today is to transform their field work into a digital way of working. How do we bring IT to the field? Or rather: how do we capture what's happening in the field digitally in a smart way? Fresh figures show that 77% of all companies use Excel or local solutions which are not scalable. This leads to lack of control, loss of efficiency, and affects customer satisfaction negatively. Can your steering group account for why 15 installations couldn't be carried out last week, or explain what measures are planned to remedy the situation if the customer asks? Does your field services staff have updated information on the work already carried out available to them?

Cloud IT for your business

The Conductor Tool is a cloud based IT solution that is customized to your operation, processes, and scale depending on your workload over time. Employees, customers and subcontractors collaborate in one place – from the tasks performed in the field to decisions made in the boardroom. Always with full control over who does what, how, where, when and for whom.

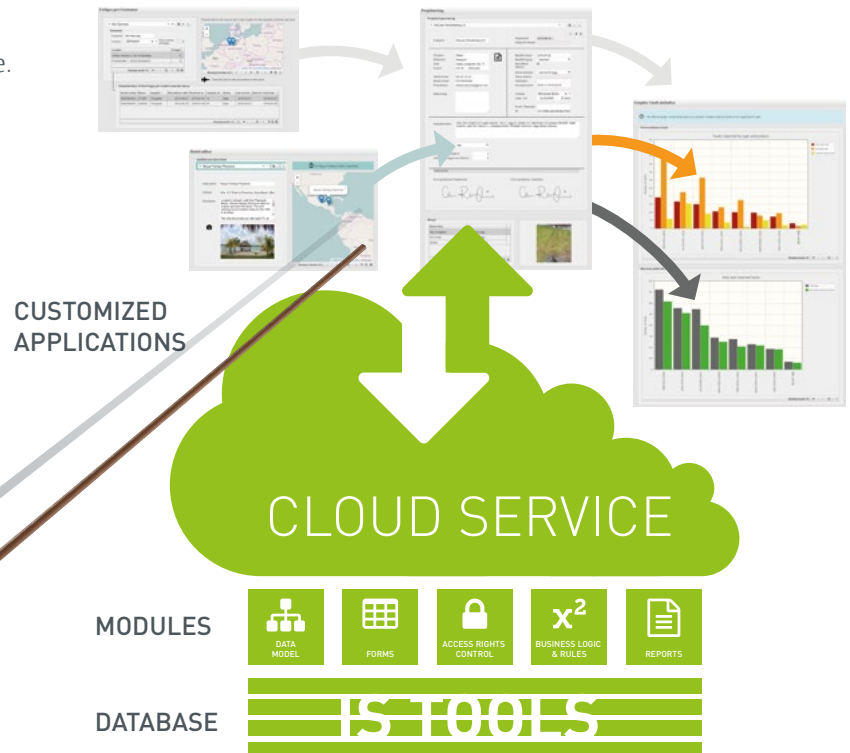

You will probably agree to that there are substantial amounts of time and money to be saved chiefly through having the ability to plan, correctly sequence, and distribute tasks to employees and contractors working in the field. Imagine if the field staff had instant access to updated customer details, work plans, maps, and images – everything needed for their work, in one place.

The Conductor Tool provides your field resources with predefined digital checklists directly in their smartphones or tablets. On top, the customers are able to review and digitally sign off on the agreed, planned, and performed work. Need to support this information with photos or drawings? Just upload, edit and attach them. The complete details can immediately be provided to the customer as a PDF.

Full control over complex workflows

Project managers can follow their projects live and distribute tasks to those taking part in the process automatically, at any time. Everyone involved (having sufficient privileges) can follow a project, get status and progress reports, see KPIs, or generate forecasts based on upcoming commitments.

We're convinced that The Conductor Tool will simplify the work at hand for anyone involved.
